TIE : I .VER VICTORY.

The New York Herald says of Senator Jones.

S nator Jones, of Nevada, has carried the day for silver. After a long and bitter controversy the silver question has taken the position most satisfactory to the Sen ator who is in command of the silver forces. He probably does not get what he wanted, but much more than he expected. The silver men were wise to intrust their campaign to a leader with so much experie .ce, ability and courage.

Now that we are to have unlimited silver, what next? It i an experiment not to be viewed without alarm. The question vill remain: Can a government make money out of anything but money?

Is real money anything but gold? Does not the power to give silver a gold value imply the power to give the same value to iron and copper? Can legislation make a token into a coin? And if we are prepared to transmute our silver into gold values at the rate o. so many ounces a month, are we also prepared to do the same for the ingots of Europe and Asia?

Perlaps aniver ex 1 sion bill could be passed based on the principle of the Chinese Restriction Act, forbidding the importation of the rupee, the tael and the franc. Such a measure would be effective until the machinery was prepared for changing the foreign silver into bright, new, shining American coins-the Eagle and Godess of Liberty in full unquestioned glory. The machinery for this transformation exists, we believe, in Birmingham.

Our Western frien s, however, are bent on having their silver. They have dreamed themselves into an ecstasy of the benefit that will come to trade and crops and society at large. We hope that every illusion will be realized. No one will be bester satisfied than those who have done what they could to prevent this doubtful experiment.

The Few York World of the 9th refers to the fight as follows:

There is no essential difference between the compromise silver bill and a simple free coinage measure so far as direct effec s upon the currency are con.erned. The bill will convert all the silver in the market into money in the form of Treasury notes, and a free coinage bill could do no more.

THE BLYTHE CASE.

The name of Blythe was considered rare some years ago, but as soon as the millionaire, Thomas Blythe, died without leaving a will, they became as thick as candidates for Governor, and the en tire country, from La niet to vi lage, as well as the big cities, resurrected a representative heir, (the only genuine Blythe living), and the new relative was immediately ushered off to San Francisco to claim the largest portion of the estate, and worry the life out of the legitimate heir, Florence

The decision of Judge Coffey leaves the vast accumulation of wealth in the hands of Florence, and unless some of the obstinate imposters continue to fight the case, she will be one of the richest girls in America

It is hardly probable that such a remarkable case, and one involving so much capital will be dropped on the first decision. It may be carried into the Supreme Court, but should this happen it will be a waste of time and money, for a reversal of Judge Coffey's rulings on a case of this magnitude is almost unthinkable, but the chances are that there will be some to take the unpromising chances of an appeal. It will be a public misfortune i that shall be the case. The Blythe block in San Francisco has been tied up for years. It occupies the choicest location in the city. Magnificent buildings are going up all around it, while it remains, with its collection of autique shanties, an eyesore and a disgrace to the CARSON CITY, NEVADA, town. The mind is staggered at the thought of the possibility of d lay if the case once gets into the bog of the Supreme Court. In that event, before a final decision is rendered the Blythe block will resemble a well wall d in with brick and stone on every side.

William Greenebaum, the young San Franciscan who was lest about two weeks ago in the Olym pie mountains, in Washington, was found Wednesday. He had lived on toads, fish and berries since last Saturday. His hands and legs were badly lacerated and he was nearly famished. When found, Greenebaum's pockets were filled with sand and dirt. He says ire fell about two hundred feet. He lay down on Saturday and went to sleep, and when he awoke it was dark and a cougar was after him.
